

I am not opposed to fax, email or voice broadcasting. However, it appears that I am in the minority. I would strongly encourage a national fax list registry similarly to the UK. This national registry allows people to opt in or opt out of a fax, email phone database. When requests for removals come in they are automatically take off the whole database. Violators of this should be penalized for sending a fax or email to an address that has been removed from the database. A process like this put the FCC in full control. The current system is too open and allows for too much interpretation of the laws.... Also it allows for potential case of a violation of Human Rights. In short, I am not opposed to Fax,Email or Voice broadcasting. For those that are I would encourage a national database.
